It was on a beautiful day on the second day of April, 1952, that the Death Angel came to the home of Wesley M. Frankum and claimed him as one of his sweet Christian boy. He tried to live that life. He was a deacon of Hollywood Baptist Church. Although his life was short, we feel that this world has been made a better place by his living in it.

We cannot, Lord, Thy purpose see. All is well that's done by Thee.

A happy home we once enjoyed. How sweet the memory still. But Death has left a loneliness this world can never fill.

If I had all this world to give I'd give it, yes, and more. Just to see his face and hear his voice, and meet him at the door.

Often to his grave we wander. Place some flowers with loving care. We feel that he is near us, as we sadly linger there.

Farm Good Place In Atomic W

There likely won't be much trouble "keeping 'em down on the farm" in case of an atomic attack. The farm might be a good place to be, what with handy food supplies, and probable distance from military targets.

Farm folks need to make plans for their protection, and the protection of feed supplies, and animals — especially valuable breeding stock, says L. B. Wilkins, rural civil defense program leader at VPI.

Barn space may be limited, but plans should be made to house breeding stock. Such stock has taken years to develop, and would be hard to replace. Provision must be made for feed and water supplies for all livestock on the farm.

A — No, you have some time left. A tentative cut - off date is March 29 but the season will probably run a little later this year.

Q — If laying hens are given all the whole oats they will eat each afternoon, will they get too much fiber for best production?

A — Yes, probably so.

Q — If flue - cured tobacco land needs extra phosphate and potash, when is the best time to apply it?

A — If the land is very low in phosphorus, broadcast the phosphorus and plow or disk it in 30 to 60 days before seeding. As for potash, put 90 to 100 pounds in the row before transplanting. If more is needed use it as a sidedressing about three weeks after transplanting.

Q — Will treatment with DDT for peach tree borers be effective at this time of year?

A — No, wait until summer. Make one application about July 5 to 15, a second around August 5 to 20.

Blueprints Ready For Milking Plant

You can order plans now for a three - stall milking plant. This is the in - line elevated aisle entering type milking room was one of the earliest of such designs and has been thoroughly proved in the field by farm operators.

This plant is adapted to herds of 20 to 40 cows with a one-man operation. For larger herds, other styles of milking plants such as the double - tandem side entering or the herringbone would be preferred. For smaller herds, the walk through in-line or the two stall "V" might be considered.

This plan, No. 5875, is well adapted to bucket milking as well as pipeline milking. If you use bucket milking, the solution vats may be left out until a pipeline is installed. The bulk tank is located to allow room for future addition of the solution vat or vats. Field tests with this type of milking system have indicated that approximately 25 cows can be milked per manhour.

Contact your county agent about blueprints showing the construction details for this three-stall milking plant.

Pastor Says

REVIVALS

With a revival service at the Methodist Church last week, one now in progress at the Presbyterian, and one coming up in about two weeks, (beginning Easter Sunday) at the Baptist Church, it seems appropriate for a word to be said about revivals. Just what is a Revival? What effect does it have upon the life of the individual and consequently the community? Is there any need for a revival in our day? There are some preachers, many people, and a few denominations who have long since decided that a revival isn't necessary. Especially the kind where a lot of emotional display is manifested.

Perhaps if we knew what a real revival is, all of us would be more interested and willing to experience results of a revival in our lives and community.

In the spring which is now in it's second week, new foliage is appearing on the trees, flowers of early spring are bursting forth and the early variety of fruit trees are putting on flowers and buds. New life is bursting forth all around us. This is exactly what a revival is and does for people. The great Psalm writer in the 85th Psalm visions says, "Will thou not revive us again that thy people may rejoice in thee? Literally he is praying to God that he will turn us again and cause us to re - live again. There is an unmistakable need of a new flow of life, and a desire for this to take place in the life of the Psalmist and his nation. The late Charles G. Finney, who was a leader in the 19th century revival movement has some things to say which is appropriate today. "There is so little principle in the church, so little firmness and stability of purpose, that unless the religious feelings are awakened and kept excited, counter worldly feeling and excitement will prevail, and men will not obey God."

All of us agree that revival is more than excitement and feeling, but take this out of religion and it will dry - rot. Take it out of marriage and it will fail, take it out of intellectualism and the drive and passion for truth ceases to call forth the best. So, a revival of real Christianity will do for our churches what the resurrection of our Lord did for those early New Testament Christians. It will not only revitilize our churches and make them more effective in today's world, but it will reshape human life to move more realistically in the stream of God's purpose in this world. The by-products of such an awakening in our community will mean the reaching of more people for Christ. This not only means the saving of otherwise lost people, but their happiness as well. Then, a genuine revival will lift the moral level of the people. A story is told of a friend who went into one of the shops in Boston during one of Mr. Moody's campaigns there to make a purchase. The purchaser asked the clerk, "Is this real Irish linen?" to which the clerk replied, "It was before Mr. Moody came to town." A resurgence of the life and purpose of God in your life will do many things to your life. It will help you to rearrange it in such a manner that every area you touch will be made beter, your home life, your business life, your social life, all will have the touch of the Master's hand upon it.

Unless we in America experience a real and vital revival of the Christian religion, there is real danger of being swallowed up by the forces of godless materialism.

While we have the bursting forth of new life in the physical world around us ,this is a good time for us to re - examine our lives to find this new life which is given in Christ. Go to the church of your choice; let God's Spirit lead you, and obey His strivings in your soul.

The Torn Veil

Lesson for April 7, 1963

Once upon a time Gethsemane and Calvary were only names. People in Jerusalem knew where they were. Gethsemane was in one kind of suburb; it was an orchard, much like a park, a good place to go for quiet and rest in the fresh air. Calvary was altogether a different place. The air was not fresh, it smelled of death. For that place (Skull Place they called it) was the Roman army's place of execution. The place reeked with blood and the flies were everywhere. Nowadays these names have a different sound. They are beloved names, poems have been written and hymns sung about them.

The Torn Veil

What sort of place would be best suited for the God of heaven and earth? In contrast to the jeweled shrines which enclosed the images of the pagan gods, the God of the Jews lived in a dark chamber into which even His priests were forbidden to enter. Of course those who thought much about such matters knew that God was not in there. Yet if you asked them, "Where is the house of God?" they would have pointed to the Temple. It was resplendent in marble and gold to be sure; but in that Temple, as in its model the little tabernacle or tent in the wilderness 12 centuries before, God Himself did not sit among the lights; His own chamber was dark, silent and bare, empty of all but Himself, invisible and terrible.

Between that chamber and the rest of the Temple hung an immense veil. It was a symbol of the mystery and the barrier between man and his God. Now on the afternoon in April when Jesus died, a strange thing happened. That great veil was found to be torn in two.

What Does Gethsemane Mean?

We may be bold to say that the torn veil let in light upon what otherwise would have remained dark forever. The tearing of the veil may symbolize the light shed by God's Spirit, as Christians believe, on the dark events we call Gethsemane and Calvary. What would Gethsemane have meant to you if you had been there? In the shadows of the great spreading trees hiding the full moon, you might have seen four men, three of them asleep but one of them praying. You could not have heard all that he said, but you might have been close enough to have heard the words wrung from him, "Let this cup pass from me . . . Nevertheless, not as I will but as Thou wilt." You could see that he dreaded something. Yet you could not see what it was he dreaded. Certainly not death, nor failure; for he had faced death and failure before this, and he knew how to take them. What was this "something" worse than death? One of the men sleeping here would one day write: "Christ suffered for you . . . He committed no sin . . . He bore our sins . . ." (I Peter 2.) By the light the Spirit pours through the opened veil, we can see what Gethsemane means: that Christ took on His own heart the sins of mankind.

What Does Calvary Mean?

Through that same rending of the mystic veil, a light is shed also on Calvary. If at Gethsemane Christ felt the shame of our sins, on Calvary He felt the dire result of our sins. For the nature and the result of sin is to separate the sinner from God. Again without the light that the Spirit shed (in various ways through the New Testament) we could make very little of Calvary. What could you have seen? Three men being tortured to death, Roman style, by being nailed to crosses. You might not have known — for certainly his executioners did not know — that the few words spoken by the man on the middle cross, in all the hours He hung there, would be immortal. Even if you had known, you could hardly have understood. Yet in the light that pours through the torn veil we can see even a meaning in the darkest of Calvary's sayings: Why hast Thou forsaken me? The meaning, part of the meaning, of Calvary is that Christ underwent, for our sake and taking our place—being shut out of the presence of God. Our shame, our sentence, He took on Himself!

Do You Eat Seaweed?

Eating seaweed doesn't appeal to most Americans. Yet three seaweed products frequently go into some commercially prepared American foods with flavor, ample results.

The products, agar, algin, and carrageenin (Irish moss), result from a technical manufacturing process. By the end of the process the substances show no resemblance to seaweed, except perhaps to a chemist.

The value of the substances, carbohydrate in nature comes largely from their stabilizing action. Therefore, as used in foods they are at least partly responsible for the desirable texture of the finished product.

For example, in some sherbets and ices, agar contributes to the smoothness and creaminess of the frozen product. Agar can also improve certain types of baked goods, meringues, and frosting.

Modified algin is used in some ice creams for the same reason agar is used in sherbet. Algin is also used to improve the consistency of some emulsified French dressings. Too, it may be used in a variety of baked products.

Like agar and modified algin, carrageenin helps make some foods smooth or creamy. It may also be useful in the suspension of cocoa in bottled chocolate milks and in making small-curd cottage cheese.

Cooking for a Crowd?

If you've ever had to cook meat loaf for 100 people, you know it can be slightly less than fun — particularly if you start with a recipe for eight.

But the job can be a lot easier if you start with the proper recipe; and if, in addition the community affair for which you've preparing has been well organized.

Home economists at Virginia Polytechnic Institute point out that to plan and prepare, and serve attractive, tasty meals for large groups at a low cost, requires intelligent organization, planning, and buying.

Whether it is a family reunion, social gathering, community meal, or church supper, decide on a plan of work.

How to organize the community affair, with details on committee work, is outlined in a new circular, "Community Dinners for Fun and Profit," now available from county home demonstration agents.

The circular also gives suggested menus and recipes for such dishes as chicken tetrazzini for 50 people, barbecued hamburgers for 25 to 100 people apple sauce cake for 100 people, and several variations of biscuits for hungry hordes. Ask your home demonstration agent for a free copy of Circular 787.

"Shiny" is the word for long thick leather gloves. Smoke soil dulls this handwear. Keep gloves shiny by washing them often in warm suds and rinses.
